What does it take to be truly successful in life? How do industry leaders and celebrated athletes stay ahead of the game? The answer is simple: they fail. Black Box Thinking by Matthew Syed is a study in failure. According to research, and as demonstrated time and time again by remarkable individuals and businesses, failure is necessary in order for us to progress. It is a valuable learning tool that leads to success. Learn exactly why this is true, and be inspired by real-life examples of those who have learned to embrace their failures for ultimate triumph. You will learn: · Why failure is not the enemy · That success has more to do with our mindset than any innate talent or ability · The lessons that can be learned when we embrace our mistakes.
